Name and Section

Before white settlement Pennsylvania was the home of about 15,000

Indians, most of whom belonged to the DELAWARE, SHAWNEE, and

SUSQUEHANNA tribes, as well as scattered groups of the IROQUOIS LEAGUE. In the 17th century, Pennsylvania was claimed by the Dutch, Swedes, and British. As early as 1614 the Dutch explored the lands along the Delaware River.

In 1643 a party of Swedes called the territory NEW SWEDEN and established the first permanent colonies at Tinicum and New Gottenburg near modern

CHESTER. In 1655, Peter Stuyvesant, the governor of New Netherland, led an
